LIFE ADMIN & LEGACY PLANNER · UK

The Just in Case Binder

Everything your people would need to know, kept safely in one place.

Printable · Fillable PDF · UK nations · Spreadsheet included

A planning and record-keeping tool. It isn't legal, financial or medical advice and it doesn't replace a will or power of attorney.

START HERE

A gift to the people you love

If you were suddenly ill, in hospital or gone, could someone find your bank, your pension, your will and your pet's vet? Most families can't. They spend months searching through drawers, inboxes and statements while they're grieving.

This binder fixes that. Work through it slowly, a section at a time. You don't need to finish it in one go and you don't need to fill in every page: skip anything that doesn't apply to you.

HOW TO USE IT

- [ ] Print it, or type straight into the fillable PDF
- [ ] Do one section a week (about 20 minutes each)
- [ ] Write where things are, not secret codes
- [ ] Tell one or two trusted people where it's kept
- [ ] Review it once a year, and after big life changes
- [ ] Use the spreadsheet for accounts and bills that change often

KEEP IT SAFE

- [ ] Never write passwords, PINs or full card numbers here. Use a password manager with emergency access instead
- [ ] Only write the last 4 digits of account numbers
- [ ] Store it somewhere secure but findable: a locked drawer or fire safe
- [ ] Keep the fillable PDF on an encrypted device, not in an email

Across the UK. Wills, powers of attorney and estates work differently in England & Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. Where it matters, the page tells you. This binder is a record-keeping tool, not legal advice: a solicitor can check your will and attorney documents are valid.

Good to know across the UK. In England, Wales and Northern Ireland, getting married or entering a civil partnership usually cancels an existing will, so you'd need a new one. This doesn't happen in Scotland. Scotland also gives a spouse, civil partner and children "legal rights" to part of the estate whatever the will says. If your life has changed since you made your will, ask a solicitor to check it.

CHANGES I WANT TO MAKE / QUESTIONS FOR MY SOLICITOR

LEGAL

Power of attorney

A power of attorney lets someone you trust make decisions if you can't. It only works if it's made while you can still decide for yourself.

ENGLAND & WALES

Lasting Power of Attorney (LPA). Two types: property & financial affairs, and health & welfare. Registered with the Office of the Public Guardian.

SCOTLAND

Continuing (money and property) and welfare powers of attorney, often in one document. Registered with the Office of the Public Guardian (Scotland).

NORTHERN IRELAND

Usually an Enduring Power of Attorney for money and property, registered with the Office of Care and Protection when needed. The law is changing: check nidirect for current rules.

Organ & body donation

Your decision, written down, makes things easier for your family at a very hard time.

All four UK nations now have an "opt-out" system: you are considered willing to donate unless you've recorded otherwise or are in an excluded group. Your family will still be asked, so tell them what you want. You can record or change your decision on the NHS Organ Donor Register.

MY DECISION

- ☐ I want to donate all my organs and tissue
