Money, without the shame

Forgotten bills, impulse buys, subscriptions you never use, the letters you can't face opening. If money feels chaotic, you're not bad with money. You may just have a brain that finds planning, remembering and waiting harder than most.

This reset doesn't ask you to become a different person. It gives you one small task a day for 30 days. Each one builds a system that does the remembering for you, so money takes up less space in your head.

HOW IT WORKS

1. Do one task a day. Most take 10–15 minutes.
2. Use the worksheets at the back when a task sends you there.
3. Every 7 days, fill in a short check-in.
4. Finish with your own money rules and habits to keep.

THE RULES

- [ ] It's undated, so start any day.
- [ ] Missed a day? Do the next one. No catching up.
- [ ] Hard task? Do half. That counts.
- [ ] No shame. Money is just numbers.
- [ ] Ask for help whenever you need it.

This programme is general information to help you get organised. It isn't financial, debt or legal advice, and Larkspur & Co. isn't a financial adviser. For free, impartial help with money or debt, see the support page (page 40).

UNDERSTANDING IT

Money and the ADHD brain

People sometimes talk about the "ADHD tax": the extra money that ADHD can cost you. Late fees, forgotten subscriptions, impulse buys, last-minute delivery charges, replacing things you've lost.

Out of sight, out of mind

Bills you can't see are easy to forget. Systems that remind you, or pay automatically, take the pressure off your memory.

Now vs. later

The reward of buying now feels much bigger than the reward of saving for later. Waiting lists and automatic saving help.

Avoidance

If money feels stressful, it's natural to avoid it, but avoiding it usually makes things worse. Small, short check-ins make it easier to face.

Dopamine shopping

Buying something new can give a quick lift when you're bored or low. Knowing your triggers helps you plan for them.

Boring admin

Paperwork, comparing deals and forms are hard to start. Breaking them into tiny steps helps.

Shame

Feeling bad about money can make you avoid it even more. This book is shame-free on purpose.

The plan

Make money visible, make the important stuff automatic, give yourself guilt-free fun money, and check in little and often. That's what the next 30 days will build.

WEEK 1

Look

This week is about facing it. You'll find out what you have, what you owe and what goes out, without judging any of it.

TASKS

- [ ] Day 1: Open the envelope
- [ ] Day 2: Look at the numbers
- [ ] Day 3: Find your bills
- [ ] Day 4: Subscription hunt
- [ ] Day 5: Cancel one
- [ ] Day 6: Set reminders
- [ ] Day 7: Week 1 check-in

MY INTENTION

DAY
1

Open the envelope

Avoiding money stuff is very common, and it usually makes the worry bigger. Today is just about looking.

Today: List every account you have: current, savings, credit cards, loans, overdrafts, buy now pay later, store cards. Use the accounts list on page 28.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

2

Look at the numbers

Knowing the real numbers is almost always less scary than the vague dread of not knowing.

Today: Log in to each account and write down today's balance next to it. Just write it down. No judging.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

3

Find your bills

Missed bills can mean late fees. Getting them all in one place is the first step to stopping that.

Today: List your regular bills, how much they are and when they leave your account. Use the bills page (page 29).

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

4

Subscription hunt

Small monthly payments are easy to forget and add up fast, especially free trials that quietly turned into payments.

Today: Scroll through the last two or three months of your bank statements. List every subscription on page 30.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

5

Cancel one

You don't need to cut everything, just one thing you don't really use or love.

Today: Pick one subscription to cancel or pause today. Do it now while you're looking at it. Write down what you'll save.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

6

Set reminders

Your brain doesn't have to remember dates if your phone does.

Today: Put each bill date into your phone calendar with an alert two days before. Check which bills could move to Direct Debit so they pay themselves.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Notice

Now you know the numbers, you'll notice how money moves: what you spend, when, and why.

TASKS

- [ ] Day 8: Track today
- [ ] Day 9: Spot your triggers
- [ ] Day 10: The waiting list
- [ ] Day 11: Needs, wants and joys
- [ ] Day 12: Make a simple budget

MY INTENTION

DAY
8

Track today

You can't change what you can't see. One day of tracking shows you a lot.

Today: Write down every single thing you spend today, however small, on the spending log (page 31).

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

9

Spot your triggers

Impulse spending usually has a pattern: a mood, a time of day, a place or an app.

Today: Think about the last few things you bought on impulse. Were you bored, tired, sad, stressed, celebrating, or scrolling late at night? Write your triggers below.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

MY SPENDING TRIGGERS

10

The waiting list

The urge to buy often fades in a day or two. A waiting list gives it time to pass.

Today: Start your wishlist on page 32. New rule: anything that isn't essential goes on the list and waits 48 hours. Still want it? Then decide.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

DAY
11

Needs, wants and joys

Not all spending is bad. Spending on things that bring you joy is fine, as long as you're choosing it.

Today: Look at your spending log. Mark each item N (need), W (want) or J (joy). Notice which wants you wouldn't miss.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

12

Make a simple budget

A budget isn't a punishment. It's a plan for where your money goes, so it doesn't just disappear.

Today: Fill in the simple monthly budget on page 33: money in, bills, everyday spending and what's left.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

13

Name your fun money

Cutting out all fun backfires. A set amount of guilt-free money makes the rest of the budget easier to stick to.

Today: Choose a weekly fun-money amount you can afford. Spend it on anything, no guilt. When it's gone, it's gone until next week.

WEEK 3

Build

Time to build systems that do the remembering for you: alerts, automatic saving and plans for big costs.

TASKS

- [ ] Day 15: Turn on the helpers
- [ ] Day 16: Pay yourself first
- [ ] Day 17: Start a buffer
- [ ] Day 18: Look at what you owe
- [ ] Day 19: The yearly costs
- [ ] Day 20: Sinking funds
- [ ] Day 21: Week 3 check-in

MY INTENTION

15

Turn on the helpers

Many banking apps have tools that work brilliantly for ADHD brains: alerts, pots and round-ups.

Today: Explore your banking app. Turn on spending notifications and a low-balance alert. If your bank offers savings pots or round-ups, set one up.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

16

Pay yourself first

Saving whatever is "left over" rarely works. Saving first, automatically, means you don't have to remember.

Today: Set up a standing order to move a small amount into savings on payday. Even £5 counts. Write the amount and date below.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

AMOUNT AND DATE

DAY 17

Start a buffer

A small buffer stops one surprise bill turning into a crisis.

Today: Set a starter savings goal (for example £100, then one month of bills). Use the colour-in tracker on page 37.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

DAY 18

Look at what you owe

Debt can feel shameful, but it's just information, and there's free help for it.

Today: List what you owe on page 36. If it feels overwhelming, the free debt charities on page 40 can help. They won't judge you.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

19

The yearly costs

Some costs only come once a year (car tax, insurance, the TV licence, Christmas) and can catch you out.

Today: List all your yearly and occasional costs on page 34.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

20

Sinking funds

Divide a yearly cost by 12 and save that each month, and the bill is already paid when it arrives.

Today: Choose your most important yearly costs and set them up as sinking funds on page 35.

WEEK 4

Protect

This week you'll protect your money from leaks: food waste, bad deals, lost paperwork and missed support.

TASKS

- [ ] Day 22: Food shop smarter
- [ ] Day 23: Check your deals
- [ ] Day 24: One money place
- [ ] Day 25: Your money date
- [ ] Day 26: Declutter for cash
- [ ] Day 27: Check what you're owed
- [ ] Day 28: Week 4 check-in

MY INTENTION

22

Food shop smarter

Food is one of the easiest places for money to leak away: impulse buys, waste and takeaways when you're tired.

Today: Plan a few easy meals, write a list, and try an online shop so you can see the total as you go. Don't shop hungry.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

23

Check your deals

Contracts often go up when the deal ends. People who check and switch, or haggle, often pay less.

Today: Write down when your phone, broadband, energy and insurance deals end. Put a reminder in your calendar a month before each one.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

DAY
24

One money place

Losing letters and passwords costs time, stress and sometimes money.

Today: Choose one place for all money paperwork: a box, a folder, an email label. Put everything you can find in it today.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

25

Your money date

A short, regular check-in stops things piling up. Make it something you look forward to.

Today: Pick a weekly 15-minute money date. Add a nice drink and good music. Use the money date page (page 38) as your guide.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

DAY
26

Declutter for cash

Most homes have money sitting in cupboards: things to sell, return or claim back.

Today: Find one thing to sell, return or claim back today. List it, post it or book the refund.

☐ Done ☐ Started ☐ Not today, that's okay

Money stress ○ ○ ○ ○ ○

NOTES

DAY
27

Check what you're owed

Lots of people miss out on support they're entitled to, like benefits, discounts and social tariffs.

Today: Use a free, independent benefits calculator (such as the ones from Turn2us or entitledto, linked from GOV.UK). Ask your energy, water and broadband providers about social tariffs or support schemes.
