A GENTLE PLANNER FOR BUSY BRAINS

The ADHD Christmas Survival Guide

Plan a calmer, good-enough Christmas: six-week countdown, gifts, food, money, sensory overload and the recovery after.

START HERE

Welcome. Breathe.

Christmas asks a lot of a busy brain: hundreds of tiny decisions, deadlines that don't move, money, noise, people and a house full of stuff. This guide carries some of that for you.

HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

1. Start with Your Good Enough Christmas. It takes ten minutes and makes every later choice easier.
2. Follow the six-week countdown. Each week has suggested tasks. Tick what helps, ignore what doesn't.
3. Use the planners (gifts, food, money, people) whenever you need them.
4. Keep the survival pages handy for the busy days themselves.

THE RULES

- [ ] Undated. Start any day, any week.
- [ ] Behind? Jump to the week you're in. No catching up.
- [ ] Print only what you need. Print pages twice if you want.
- [ ] A half-filled page still helped.
- [ ] Good enough is the goal. Perfect isn't on the list.

Starting late?
If Christmas is less than six weeks away, begin at the week that matches the time you have left. Do the Good Enough page first, then the gift list, then the food plan. Everything else is a bonus.

THIS CHRISTMAS I WANT TO FEEL...

This guide is a planning tool, not medical advice. If the season is affecting your mental health, please talk to your GP or someone you trust. In the UK you can call Samaritans free on 116 123, day or night.

UNDERSTANDING IT

Why Christmas is hard for busy brains

If December leaves you exhausted, scattered or snappy, that isn't a character flaw. The season stacks up exactly the things many ADHD brains find hardest.

Decisions, decisions

Every gift, menu, plan and outfit is a choice. Making lots of choices drains the same energy you need to get things done.

Hard deadlines

Most of the year, late is annoying. At Christmas, late means a missed post or a closed shop. Time blindness meets a date that won't move.

Money pressure

Lots of small purchases are easy to lose track of, and impulse buys feel festive in the moment.

Sensory overload

Lights, music, crowds, wrapping paper, strong smells, scratchy jumpers and noisy rooms all add up.

Broken routines

Days off, late nights, travel and different food remove the structure that usually holds things together.

People, all at once

Socialising takes energy, and Christmas packs in more of it, often with people who know exactly how to press your buttons.

So the plan is simple

Make big decisions early, write everything down in one place, protect your energy, and lower the bar on purpose. That's what every page in this guide is built to do.

WHAT FEELS HARDEST FOR ME THIS YEAR

THE PLAN

The six-week countdown

Each week has one job. The weekly pages break it into small tasks you can tick off. Just tick off what helps.

6 weeks to go

Week 1: Decide

Before anything gets bought, decide what this Christmas is for. Big decisions now mean fewer small ones later.

Dates: _____

5 weeks to go

Week 2: Gather

Collect the information you need before you start spending. Lists first, shopping second.

Dates: _____

4 weeks to go

Week 3: Buy

The main shopping week. Aim to get most of the gifts sorted, then stop looking.

Dates: _____

3 weeks to go

Week 4: Wrap & post

Turn bought things into finished things. Little and often beats one giant wrapping night.

Dates: _____

2 weeks to go

Week 5: Prepare

Get ready for the busy days so future you has less to think about.

Dates: _____

WEEKS TO GO

Week 1: Decide

Before anything gets bought, decide what this Christmas is for. Big decisions now mean fewer small ones later.

SUGGESTED THIS WEEK

- [ ] Fill in "Your Good Enough Christmas" (page 6)
- [ ] Set a total budget, even a rough one
- [ ] Write the gift list: names only, no ideas yet
- [ ] Ask: who is hosting, and where will we be?
- [ ] Put the key dates on one calendar
- [ ] Pick one thing to drop this year

Something to eat or drink

Hamper, favourite sweets, posh coffee or tea, a local bakery voucher, hot chocolate kit.

Something to do

Cinema or theatre tickets, a class, a day out, a puzzle book, a jigsaw, a board game.

Something cosy

Socks, blanket, slippers, hot water bottle, candle, bath things.

Something useful

A good umbrella, a phone charger, a reusable cup, a decent pen, kitchen gadgets they mentioned.

Something to keep

A framed photo, a book you loved, a plant, something handmade.

Time, not things

A promise of a meal out, babysitting, a walk together, help with a job they've been putting off.

Low-energy food shortcuts

Tick the ones you'll use. None of them is cheating.

ON THE DAY

- [ ] Buy pre-peeled, pre-chopped veg
- [ ] Use frozen roast potatoes and Yorkshires
- [ ] A ready-stuffed or boneless joint
- [ ] Shop-bought gravy and stuffing
- [ ] Cook two sides, not seven
- [ ] Lay the table the night before
- [ ] Use foil trays to save on washing up
- [ ] Give every guest one job

THE DAYS AROUND IT

- [ ] A "snack table" instead of meals on Boxing Day
- [ ] Leftovers wraps and sandwiches
- [ ] Freezer meals made in November
- [ ] A takeaway night planned on purpose
- [ ] Pizza and a film on Christmas Eve
- [ ] Paper plates for one day. It's fine.
- [ ] A breakfast that needs no cooking
- [ ] A fruit bowl you can grab from

Food safety basics
Get leftovers into the fridge within two hours, eat them within two days, and reheat until steaming hot all the way through. Reheat food only once. Check the Food Standards Agency website for current guidance.

When you're overwhelmed, finding words is hard. Pick a few lines now, so they're ready when you need them.

SAYING NO

"Thanks for asking. I can't this year, but I'd love to see you in January."

"We're keeping things quiet this year."

"I'm going to sit this one out."

LEAVING EARLY

"I'm going to head off. This has been lovely."

"I've hit my limit for today, so I'm off to rest."

"I need to get back, but I'm really glad I came."

"I'm just going to get some air."

"Back in ten, I'm grabbing a quiet minute."

"I'm going to help in the kitchen." (often quieter!)

AWKWARD QUESTIONS

"I'd rather not get into that today. How are you?"

"Still working it out. What about you?"

"That's a big question for a Christmas dinner!"

GIFTS AND MONEY

"We're doing a secret Santa this year to keep it simple."

"We're only buying for the kids this year."

"We're on a tight budget, so we're keeping gifts small."

SURVIVE IT · KEEP THIS HANDY

Stuck? Start here.

When it all feels like too much, follow the arrows. One box at a time.

Stop.	Put down what you're holding. Take three slow breaths.
↓
Body check.	Hungry? Thirsty? Too hot? Too loud? Fix the easiest one.
↓
Get it out.	Write everything in your head on a scrap of paper. All of it.
↓
Circle one.	Pick the smallest thing that has to happen today.
↓
Shrink it.	What's the first two-minute step? Only that.
↓
Do just that.	Set a timer for five minutes. Stop when it rings if you want.
↓
Check in.	Better? Pick the next tiny step. Still too much? Rest. Ask for help. Try again later.

You don't have to do Christmas all at once. You just have to do the next small thing.
